Young Learners Project

Dear Parent,

As you will know from our previous letter, we were working in your child's class today, making clocks and talking about "Time".

The aim of this activity was to provide an opportunity for parents to have a closer look at the stage the children are at in learning to tell the time.

We talked about the months of the year and the order they come in. This is another aspect of time.

Talking about birthdays and special festivals e.g. Christmas, Easter, Hallowe'en etc. can greatly help, as your child begins to associate familiar events with certain months of the year.

We hope you will enjoy spending time together at home, using the clock, to support your child's classroom learning.

REMEMBER

Some children will take a long time to master telling the time, but your support, involvement, praise and encouragement, can make a huge difference.
